

The column I like the most is the one with the names of the teams playing at home because I am a big soccer fan. In addition, I also like the column with the names of the away teams for the same reason as the first column. Then the HTHG column I like since it counts the goals of the home teams and I remember watching this league since it was the first league to start after the pandemic and all of us soccer fans were watching. Lastly, I like the AS column because it talks about assists, which is a fundamental part of soccer.

HTHG	I like since it counts the goals of the home teams and I remember watching this league since it was the first league to start after the pandemic and all of us soccer fans were watching.
AS	It talks about assists, which is a fundamental part of soccer.
HTAG	I like since it counts the goals of the away that counts a lot because you are not playing in your stadium.
AVGA	This is important information because it shows the average number of goals per game.
